STATEMENT ON THE ROHS REGULATIONS

At present PB Designs do not believe that this directive is applicable to the products we currently manufacture or supply. The ROHS Directive 2002/95/EC dated 27th January 2003 limits the categories of Electrical and Electronic equipment to which it should be applied. These are set out in Annex 1A of the WEEE Directive 2002/96/EC dated 27th January 2003 Annex 1B breaks this down further into a list of products, our products are not included. PB Designs will continue to review proposed legislation and will revise our procedures and policies to comply with changes before they are mandatory. Despite the limitations of the existing regulations PB Designs are designing all new products to fully comply with both ROHS 2002/95/EC and WEEE 2002/96/EC.

There are of course other regulations that do apply to our products. Most important is the disposal of batteries, PB Design & Developments Ltd is a licensed carrier we remove the products from site and then employ a specialist subcontractor to dispose of them.
